Rezikletas:

A street percussion show in which four actor-musicians stage a travelling concert where the sound is completely acoustic and achieved with re-used and recycled material. Spectators are given the opportunity to recycle their own creativity and their vision of the world today: I can construct my own environment. On the strength of the group's creativity we present an audio-visual act which explores the limitations of acting in public spaces. The score speaks of the supposed evolution of humanity: from instinct to reasoning.
